Mr. Robert Axe Mrs. L. A. Axe Mr. W. D. Goff

The past several years has seen a definite increase in the number of those who prefer the funeral home to the private home in time of bereavement. Our policy is to offer the unreserved use of our funeral home, and allow the bereaved family to accept or reject. In offering our home, however, we afford the very best of accommodations obtainable in the city. Our spacious parlors and fine appointments are available at no additional cost.

Equality of Sacrifice

WENDELL WILLKIE'S remarks in New York Times Hall last Wednesday bight about the fallacy of keeping up the American standard of living in wartime cannot be storigged off as lightly as those who disagree with min would

Mr. Willkie's due t application of ois argument was to higher federal taxes to re-train the growth of national debt, but the same argument may be applied in other places, too,

At this moment, the country is grappling with the problem, for instance, of trying to meet organized labor's demands for an escalator wage scale that will enable its members to maintain a fixed standard of buying power.

This is only one of many symptoms of a widespread conviction among the people that prewar standards should be maintained at any cost by manipulations to create at least the ulusion of being able to fight the costlict war in history without surrender of anything except luxuries-and there is even some dispute about giving them up, usually based on fatuous arguments about the damage that might be done to morals.

Naturally, Americans are reluctant to approach the sacrifices of, say, the British, contending that the British are in a different situation because of their special circumstances. They have obeyed instinct in trying to retain as much as possible of the values they cherish, but it is Mr. Willkie's argument that if we are going to save our standard of living in the future our standard of living today must be reduced. The alternative is to relain what we have through the expediency of deficit spending, with the burden passed along to the future. "Why should we be comfortable?" he asks, when there is no comfort in faxholes, no comfort in a flaming plane, no comfort in the sea, or in a Japanese prison camp,

There is no easy answer to that question. Mr. Willkle, himself, does not answer it with his claim that at least 16 more bilions should be taxed from the people, but it is more important at the moment that he has raised it. Equality of sacrifice is being ignored too widely for America's good, a fact grasped by those who are doing the sacrificing, more readily than those of us who can still discuss sacrifice academically.

Raymond Clapper, Reporter

ANYTHING the newspaper brotherhood can say about Raymond Clapper, killed beyond the line of duty while helping to report the invasion of the Marshall islands, will fall short of doing justice to his standing in the pro-

He was over the islands in a plane because he thought that was the place to be to get his story. He was on war duty because he chose to be where big news was being made. The risks he had taken in the Mediterranean and in the Pacific were taken of his own volition. He knew what he was doing; he preferred to be up front where things were happening.

Men like hun have given Americans a mastertul job of war reporting. Many of them have lost their lives, as he lost his, in the line of voluntary duty. Many of them have deliberately exposed themselves to extraordinary danger to get first-hand impressions. And all of them have done this of their own volition. Good war correspondents are hard to find, When they lose their gambles with danger their shoes are hard to fill. They are never ordered to take extraordinary risks.

We have no idea how Raymend Capper would have preferred to die. Probably he was too busy to think about it. But if he did think about it, we can imagine he would have chosen to be on the trail of a big story-trying to get the news, trying to tell his countrymen what was going on.

Serving the People

THE unmistakably clear statement by the war department for guidance of personnel charged with furnishing information to the army, that "the army is serving the people," not expecting to dominate them," is a ball ringer for common sense. There is reason for unlimited hope in the influence of the mon ; who have served the nation in this wer if they use it in the years to come as oldizens within

Their hard contact with reality in their p wartime experience will help them to do something Americans have not been doing too well in recent years—to see through the superficialities to the fundamental things that count. The pride they will take in citizenship that has been earned by sacrifice, not merely hestowed by birth or obtained by legal process will keep them alert to its responsibilities. Having seen enough of other parts of the world to make direct comparisons, they will appreciate their heritage.

As is customary, for obscure reasons, some Americans already are worrying about the impact of upword of 10,000,000 citizens who have performed military service. The impact is something to think about, to be sure, but not to worry about. If the 10,000,000 haven't learned by their war experience what kind of an America is worth saving, then their efforts are being wasted and they might as well take NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

The foolery, otherwise known as political strategy, would, if it were not for Mr. Walkie, be the standard practice in both parties. The condidates would all minmur eoyly and blush denourely like madens listering to a proposal of marriage in an old-style novel and, with one eye on Or. Gallup, keep telling us that they will be a pister to us.

Direct Action Urged

The notion that a candidate for president should declare himself, and then say what he thinks, is too simple-nunded for the master strategists who are getting ready to provide our country with its next president. I wonder if it is a good strategy. In considering this question we may pass over quickly the rather odd assumption that the citizens do not need to know, do not care to know, and are not entitled to know well in advance, and while there is time for debate, who it is that thinks he is fit to conduct the war, make the peace and demobilize the

Let us ask ourselves whether it is good strategy for getting a candidate elected, and not merely nominated. For getting the nonination it has much to be said for if. By not being a candidate and yet by not being not a candidate. Mr. Roosevelt suffocates at birth all other Democratic boomlets, No. other gandidary can have the nudacity to be born into the Democratic political family.

On the Republican side, the principal contenders, apart from Wendell Wilkie, are all strong and silent men, too intensely pre-occupied to think about being

The arguments against it are formulaide, Sixteen years is an unconscionably long time for any man to be president. This admin-istration is growing old and tired at the top and though it is conducting the war well and indeed better than any of our wars has even been conducted, the more closely one observes it day by day the more one wonders whether it has the fresh energy left to grasp hold deal with the new problems which the end of the war will

Arguments On Both Sides

Moreover, there is a very great deal to be said for letting, and indeed making, the opposition take its turn at carrying the awful burden of responsibility.

Rut, as against all this, the argument in favor of the fourth term is that the Republican party has yet to offer any convincing evidence that it knows how to make the grand settlement which will redoesn the terrible sacrifice of war by a good and lasting peace.

And while they know something about Mr. Wilkie, as yet not nearly enough, but at least something, what they see is that his party in congress has steadily rejected his leadership since he was nominated at Philadelphia in 1940 . . . Why not put an end to this polery? Gov. Dewey is a candldate. Let him say so, and then let him make some carefully prepared addresses saying where he stands, not necessarily on every issue and not to the last technical detail, but on enough issues and with enough concreteness, to give the nation a good sample of his mind, and his views, and his character. Let him debate temperately and sincerely with Mr. Willkie some of the questions which the next president must act upon. That is not asking very much. How among a free should remind you that your water pipes need protection from the cold weather, too. If they freeze and burst, you will be without running water. Precautions are especially important this year. Repairs to damaged water pipes may be difficult to obtain because of the scarcity of plumbers and critical materials. Take steps today to avoid inconvenience and expensive repair bills.

- Wrap exposed water pipes and meter with old newspapers, rags or burlap.
- Make your basement air tight. Repair broken window panes. Stuff cracks in walls, around windows and around doors which admit cold air.
- Select now the faucet you plan to open slightly during extremely cold nights-(One located highest in your house is best.) Then determine the right size stream—a quart a minute will be enough.

Stassen, Willkie Lead in Poll of Minnesota G.O.P.

By GEORGE GALLUP Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 5-Lieut, Commander Harold E. Stassen and Wendell L. Willkie are at present the two top choices of Minnesota Republican voters for the G. O. P. presidential nomination this year. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York runs a close third with Gen. Douglas MacArthur fourth.

The opinions of Minnesota Republicans were sounded in a survey by the Institute in which each voter was asked to make his choice from a list of men most often discussed as possible presidential candidates. Those who named a Republican candidate indicated the following preferences

Stassen .					31%
Willkie .					28

Johns-Manville

It Insulates as it Builds

J-M Insulating Board comes in large alicets that can be applied directly to the wall framing. It provides generous insulation and helps increase production by maintaining proper temperatures. Recommended for Laying and Brooder Houses and for dozens of other uses on the farm. It saws and nails easily, has a hard, smooth surface that will withstand considerable abuse. May be painted if desired and no priming is needed.
